Fenty's 'Green Agenda' Takes Root

BLOOM TOWN: Wet, mild weather has brought D.C.'s trees, seen here Tuesday, into spectacular flower. But Mayor Adrian M. Fenty wants more — his pledge Tuesday to make the city more environmentally friendly includes a promise to increase tree cover by 5 percent. Also on his "Green Agenda": more energy-efficient buildings, cleaner streams and a larger bike-rental program.

Torture Charges Possible

Obama open to probe of harsh CIA interrogations

WASHINGTON | President Obama left the door open Tuesday to prosecuting Bush administration officials who devised the legal authority for gruesome terror-suspect interrogations, saying the United States lost "our moral bearings" with the use of the tactics.

The president discussed the issue of terrorism-era interrogation tactics with reporters as he finished an Oval Office meeting with visiting King Abdullah II of Jordan.

Obama also said he could support a congressional investigation into the Bush-era terrorist detainee program, but only under certain conditions, such as if it were done on a bipartisan basis. He said he worries about the impact that high-intensity, politicized hearings in Congress could have on the government's efforts to cope with terrorism.

Press secretary Robert Gibbs said later that the independent Sept. 11 Commission, which investigated and then reported on the terror attacks of 2001, might be a model.

The president had said earlier that he didn't want to see prosecutions of the CIA agents and interrogators who took part in waterboarding and other harsh interrogation tactics, so long as they acted within parameters spelled out by government superiors who held that such practices were legal at the time. Akron, Ohio, police say a 52-year-old woman was attacked on her first day as an exotic dancer by a jealous co-worker wielding a stiletto heel. Akron police Lt. Rick Edwards says the woman was assailed Friday night by a co-worker who didn’t think the club needed more dancers. Police say one of the dancers took her stiletto and repeatedly struck the woman in the face as she walked into the basement dressing room. The woman was treated at a hospital and received seven staples. She has declined to press charges against her assailant. (AP)

Obama Signs National Service Bill

President encourages Americans to take part in volunteering

WASHINGTON | Calling on Americans to volunteer, President Obama signed a $5.7 billion national service bill Tuesday that triples the size of the AmeriCorps service program over the next eight years and expands ways for students to earn money for college.

"We need your service, right now, in this moment in history. ... I'm asking you to stand up and play your part," Obama said.

Joining Obama was Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who has been battling brain cancer. Kennedy championed the legislation with Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and the bill was named in honor of the Massachusetts Democrat.

Kennedy told the audience that included former president Bill Clinton, New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg and former first lady Rosalyn Carter that Obama's efforts echoed that of his late brother, former president John F. Kennedy.

President Obama examines his muddy shoe Tuesday as he and first lady Michelle Obama plant a tree during a project at D.C.'s Kenilworth Park and Aquatic Gardens.

"Today, another young president has challenged another generation to give back to their nation,"

Kennedy said, citing his brother's advocacy of the Peace Corps. The service law expands ways for students to earn money for college through their volunteer work. It aims to foster and fulfill people's desire to make a difference, such as by mentoring children, cleaning up parks or buildings and weatherizing homes for the poor.

"All that's required on your part is a willingness to make a difference," Obama said. "And that is, after all, the beauty of service: Anybody can do it."

Obama visited the SEED School of Washington, a public boarding school that serves inner-city students facing problems in both the classroom and at home, for the signing ceremony.

Afterward, Obama and first lady Michelle Obama joined Clinton to plant trees at a national park site along the Anacostia River in Northeast Washington. At the Kenilworth Park and Aquatic Gardens, Obama rolled up his sleeves with volunteers from the Student Conservation Association and local public high schools.

"Somebody forgot my boots," Obama joked to the students. ANN SANNER (AP)

IN COURT He Makes Judge Judy Look Soft A state judge in Pocatello, Idaho, who said he lost patience with an unruly defendant ordered court officials to cover the man's mouth with duct tape. The unusual move was ordered Monday by 6th District Judge Peter D. McDermott during a probation violation hearing for Nicklas Frasure. During the hearing, Frasure made repeated outbursts and ignored the judge's orders to refrain from interrupting the court. The judge ordered bailiffs to silence Frasure, which they did with the tape. Craigslist Suspect Charged

Police: Med. student killed masseuse he met through Web site

BOSTON | A Boston medical student accused of targeting women who advertised exotic services on Craigslist was ordered held without bail Tuesday on charges that he sought to rob a masseuse, but bashed her in the head and shot her through the heart when she fought back.

Philip Markoff, 22, a second-year medical student at Boston University, said nothing during a brief appearance Tuesday in Boston Municipal Court, where he was ordered held on charges including murder, armed robbery and kidnapping.

“Philip Markoff is not guilty of the charges. He has his family's support,” said Markoff's defense attorney John Salsberg.

Prosecutors say they traced an e-mail address used to set up an appointment with masseuse Julissa Brisman of New York City to Markoff, who was on his way to Foxwoods Casino in Connecticut with his fiancée when he was arrested Monday afternoon.

Brisman was found dead April 14 in a Boston luxury hotel. Markoff is also charged with robbing and tying up another woman who advertised a massage on Craigslist on April 10.

Suffolk County District Attorney Daniel Conley says authorities searching Markoff's home in Quincy found a semiautomatic weapon, restraints and duct tape — evidence he called “critical, powerful.”

Markoff's fiancée, Megan McAlister, says police have the wrong man.

“He could not hurt a fly,” McAlister said in an e-mail she sent to ABC's “Good Morning America.” “All I have to say is Philip is a beautiful person, inside and out.”

FBI Adds Activist to ‘Most Wanted’

Fugitive is the first domestic suspect on agency's terrorist list

WASHINGTON | A fugitive animal rights activist believed to be hiding outside the United States has become the first domestic terror suspect named to the FBI's list of “Most Wanted” terrorists.

Daniel Andreas San Diego, a 31-year-old computer specialist, is wanted for the 2003 bombings of two offices in California.

Authorities say San Diego has unusual tattoos, including one that shows a burning field and proclaims, “It only takes a spark.”

San Diego

FBI Assistant Director Michael Heimbach announced San Diego's addition to its “Most Wanted” terrorist list Tuesday.

“The leads have gone stale on us, so now we're seeking the public's awareness,” said Heimbach.

San Diego is the 24th person on the bureau's wanted terrorist list and the only domestic terror suspect.

The FBI says animal rights and environmental extremists have been responsible for more than 1,800 criminal acts and more than $110 million in damages. Currently, the bureau is investigating 170 animal rights or environmental extremism incidents.

The FBI's “Most Wanted” terrorist list is distinct from the much longer-running “Ten Most Wanted” list. Al-Qaeda chief Osama bin Laden is on both. (AP)

Somalian Is Charged With Piracy

Survivor of Maersk Alabama attack will be tried as an adult

NEW YORK | The sole survivor of a pirate attack on an American cargo ship off the Somali coast was charged as an adult Tuesday after a prosecutor said he gave wildly varying ages for himself but finally admitted he was 18.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Andrew J. Peck said Abdiwali Abdiqadir Muse could be treated as an adult in U.S. courts after a closed hearing during which he said Muse's father gave conflicting testimony about the ages of his children.

Muse was charged with several counts, including piracy under the law of nations. That charge carries a mandatory penalty of life in prison.

Muse sobbed early in the hearing when his attorneys mentioned they had contacted his family in Somalia. The judge closed the hearing for testimony about Muse's age and to decide whether he was a juvenile.

Muse arrived in New York on Monday evening. He is the sole surviving Somali pirate from the hostage-taking of American ship captain Richard Phillips from the Maersk Alabama. (AP)

Sri Lanka Situation 'Catastrophic'

52,000 flee war-torn land as rebels allege 1,000 killed in raid

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA | Tens of thousands of civilians trapped in Sri Lanka's northern war zone face a "catastrophic" situation, the Red Cross said Tuesday, amid fears a final assault against the Tamil Tiger rebels would lead to a dramatic rise in casualties.

The U.N. and others have called for a negotiated truce to allow civilians to leave the rebel-held coastal strip — and the government says more than 52,000 had escaped since Monday.

But it has refused to heed those international pleas to halt the fighting, saying it is on the verge of crushing the separatists and putting an end to the war.

The rebels said more than 1,000 civilians died Monday in a government raid, while the government said it rescued thousands after they broke through a barrier built by the insurgents that protects their last stronghold.

Human rights groups say the civilians are trapped in the war zone, the Red Cross said. Human Rights Watch said up to 100,000 are stranded.

Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam are holding many people in the enclave against their will and using them as human shields. Those groups have also accused the government of indiscriminate shelling in the region. Both sides deny the allegations.

Thousands of civilians also fled in packed small boats, and they were picked up by navy patrols

"The situation is nothing short of catastrophic. Ongoing fighting has killed or wounded hundreds of civilians who have only minimal access to medical care," said Red Cross operations director Pierre Kraehenbuehl. Space Finding Hits Close to Home

European researchers find Earth-like planet beyond solar system

HATFIELD, ENGLAND | In the search for Earth-like planets, astronomers zeroed in Tuesday on two places that look awfully familiar to home. One is close to the right size. The other is in the right place.

European researchers said they not only found the smallest exoplanet ever, called Gliese 581 e, but also realized that a neighboring planet discovered earlier, Gliese 581 d, was in the prime habitable zone for potential life.

"The Holy Grail of current exo-

planet research is the detection of a rocky, Earth-like planet in the 'habitable zone,'" said Michel Mayor, an astrophysicist at Geneva University in Switzerland.

An American expert called the discovery of the tiny planet planets have been found outside our solar system, but so far nearly every one of them was found to be extremely unlikely to harbor life.

"extraordinary."

Gliese 581 e is only 1.9 times the size of Earth — while previous planets found outside our solar system are closer to the size of massive Jupiter, which NASA says could swallow more than 1,000 Earths.

Gliese 581 e sits close to the nearest star, making it too hot to support life. Still, Mayor said its discovery in a solar system

20½ light-years away from Earth is a "good example that we are progressing in the detection of Earth-like planets."

Scientists also found that the orbit of planet Gliese 581 d, which was found in 2007, was located within the "habitable zone" — a region around a sun-like star that would allow water to be liquid on the planet's surface, Mayor said Tuesday at the University of Hertfordshire during the European Week of Astronomy and Space Science.

It was possible Gliese 581 d had a "large and deep" ocean, team member Stephane Udry said. "It is the first serious 'water world' candidate," Udry said. JENNIFER QUINN (AP)

Iranian Modified Speech

U.N.: Ahmadinejad skipped Holocaust denial in comments

GENEVA | A day after Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad caused an uproar with a speech attacking Israel at a U.N. conference on racism, the U.N. said Tuesday that Ahmadinejad had actually dropped language from the speech that described the Holocaust as “ambiguous and dubious.”

The U.N. and the Iranian Mission in Geneva did not comment on why the change was made. U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon, however, said he had met with the Iranian delegates clap as a U.N. conference on racism adopts a resolution.

Iranian president before his speech Monday and reminded him the U.N. had adopted resolutions “to revoke the equation of Zionism with racism and to reaffirm the historical facts of the Holocaust.”

Still, Ahmadinejad’s accusation that the West used the Holocaust as a “pretext” for aggression against Palestinians still provoked walkouts by delegates including every European Union country in attendance. But others, including those from the Vatican, stayed because they said he stopped short of denying the Holocaust.

The United States and eight other Western countries had already boycotted the event because of concerns Muslim countries would denounce Israel and restrict criticism of Islam.

More than 100 other countries on Tuesday approved a 16-page declaration urging the world to combat intolerance. ALEXANDER G. HIGGINS (AP)

Md. Killing Motive Sought

Man who shot family was $450K in debt, battled depression

FREDERICK, MD. | A Maryland man who shot his wife and three children to death and then killed himself struggled with depression, had $450,000 in debt and nearly decapitated his kids after they had died, Frederick County Sheriff Charles Jenkins said Tuesday.

In six notes left behind, Christopher Wood, 34, discussed his family's severe financial problems and remorse for what he had done. Then, he committed suicide. A relative found the family Satur-

It was the first of two murder-suicides in Maryland in the last four days, and among a growing number nationwide in which a shooter killed family members in the wake of economic hardship.

Wood had a good job, making $97,000 a year as an account manager in the sales and marketing group at CSX Corp. in Baltimore. But the family couldn't sell their previous home in Florida, and they had credit card problems.

Wood shot his children — Chandler, 5, Gavin, 4, and Fiona, 2 — and his wife as they slept. He almost cut off his children's heads using a kitchen knife and pruning saw, the sheriff said.

"I can't make sense of any of this," Jenkins said. (AP)

Police: D.C. Mentor Kissed Girl

50-year-old charged with sexual abuse of 15-year-old at school

A mentor for a nonprofit anti-violence group that works with youths in the District has been charged with second-degree sexual abuse after he allegedly kissed and fondled a student at a Northeast Washington high school.

Barry Harrison, 50, is a convicted killer who worked for Peaceholics in a program at Spingarn High School, authorities said.

In charging papers, police said that he kissed and fondled a 15-year-old girl April 14 in the basement of the school, on Benning Road NE.

The charging papers also stated that Harrison recently told another 15-year-old student that he was going to "kidnap" her and "have fun like sex" with her.

Elmo Launches Planetarium Show

Muppet will educate kids about astronomy at the Smithsonian

WASHINGTON | Elmo is reporting for duty at the National Air and Space Museum, ready for a trip into outer space.

The beloved “Sesame Street” character donned a space suit Tuesday to introduce a planetarium show.

It's the museum's first astronomy show designed for children 4 to 6.

Elmo popped up before a huge replica of the Hubble Space Telescope as young fans looked on.

He told the youngsters “Elmo the Elmonaut” is like an astronaut, “only scarier.”

Geithner: Banks Still in Distress

Treasury chief says 'evidence is mixed' on success of bailouts

WASHINGTON | America's banks are still broken despite all their bailout billions, Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner told impatient rescue overseers Tuesday as they pressed him on when things will get better and how much it will cost. A bleak new report estimated U.S. banks and other financial institutions could lose a stunning $2.7 trillion in all.

How well is the mostly spent $700 billion federal bailout working? "To date, frankly, the evidence is mixed," Geithner told a congressionally appointed oversight panel.

Confidence in the program is wearing thin on Capitol Hill. With lawmakers back from their spring break, even bailout supporters are skeptical that Congress would approve additional bank rescue money if requested.

Geithner's testimony signaled that the administration was not preparing to ask.

Wall Street was cheered by Geithner's assessment that "the vast majority" of banks could be considered well-capitalized. Bank stocks slid on Monday but bounced back on Tuesday.

Still, the government's effort to stabilize the financial sector and unclog credit markets has come under heavy scrutiny. Officials must do a better job in carrying out and explaining its efforts to shore up the financial system, the head of the oversight panel told Geithner.

"The sense of fear and uncertainty has not gone away, but it's been joined by a new sense of anger and frustration," said Elizabeth Warren. (AP)

The New York Times says its first-quarter losses worsened amid a drop in ad sales.

N.Y. Times Sees Steep Decline in Ad Revenue

Company's IQ losses were far worse than analysts had expected

NEW YORK | The New York Times Co. fell into a deeper financial hole during the first quarter as the newspaper publisher's advertising revenue plunged 27 percent in an industrywide slump that is reshaping the print media.

The owner of the New York Times, the Boston Globe and 15 other daily newspapers lost $74.5 million, or 52 cents per share, in the opening three months 2009. That compared with a loss of $335,000 at the same time last year.

The decrease in ad revenue at the New York Times in the first quarter of 2009 as compared to the same period last year.

The results in the most recent quarter included charges totaling 18 cents per share to cover the costs of jettisoning employees and other one-time accounting measures.

Even with those charges stripped out, the loss was much worse than analysts expected. Analysts surveyed by Thomson Reuters had predicted the New York-based company would lose 4 cents per share. (AP)

Searching for a True Signal-Caller

Stafford's pedigree undoubted; Redskins interested in Sanchez

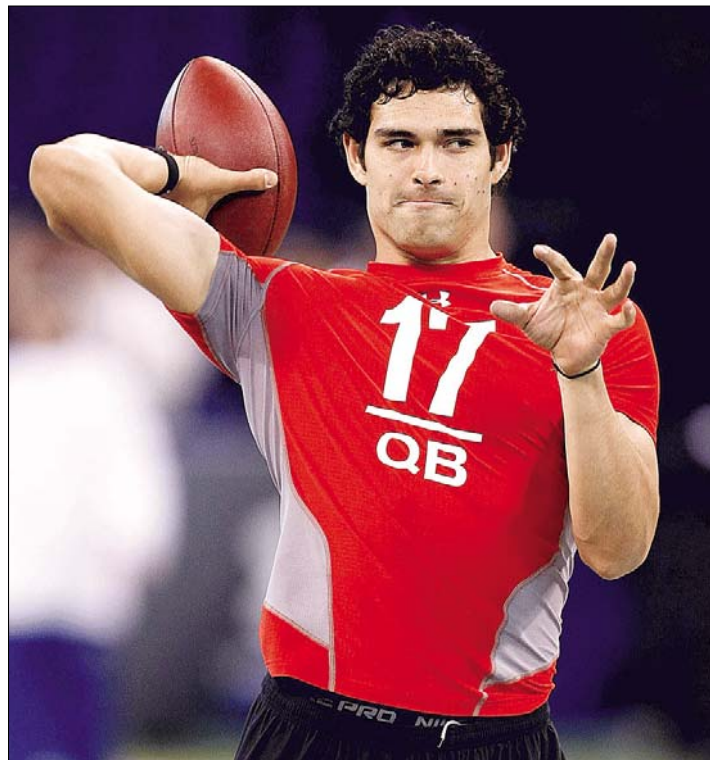

It's always about the quarterbacks. When there aren't a few in the mix to be among the first players selected in an NFL draft, the question is why not. When there are, as with this draft that begins Saturday, the major intrigue surrounds when they'll be taken and by which teams.

"I think this is my 16th year in the NFL, and it's my first exposure to it, and, hopefully, my last."

—JIM SCHWARTZ, LIONS COACH, ON HAVING THE TOP DRAFT PICK

It's just the nature of the sport: If you don't have a franchise quarterback, you have to get one.

The positions of the players most likely to be selected in the early stages of this draft are far more about wide receivers, tackles and hybrid players who could end up as either defensive ends or outside linebackers. The biggest story lines, however, are whether the Detroit Lions will select Georgia quarterback Matthew Stafford with the top overall choice and which team will take Southern Cal's Mark Sanchez.

USC's Mark Sanchez is listed as the second-best quarterback in the draft behind Georgia's Matthew Stafford. The Redskins are said to be interested in Sanchez.

The Lions are coming off the first 0-16 season in league history, and their brain trust of team president Tom Lewand, new general manager Martin Mayhew and rookie head coach Jim Schwartz is fully aware it can't afford to get this pick wrong.

"I think this is my 16th year in the NFL, and it's my first exposure to it, and, hopefully, my last," Schwartz said at the combine of having the top pick.

Most NFL talent evaluators seem to agree Stafford has the arm strength and quick mind necessary to be a Pro Bowl-caliber quarterback. The general consensus across the league seems to be the Lions probably will select Stafford.

If they do, the focus immediately moves to which team will choose Sanchez. The Washington Redskins, at 13th, are said to be enamored with Sanchez.

Sanchez whose draft stock has been soaring in recent weeks, and some teams might be willing to trade way up in the first round to get him. The competition between Stafford and Sanchez has been friendly, with the two having gotten along well since meeting at an offseason quarterback camp.

"It was fun to watch each other on TV [last season] and root each other on," Sanchez said. "Everybody tries to make it so serious — who's going to be No. 1 — and it's going to be fun either way."

Rangers Try to Figure Out Revitalized Capitals

Head coach Tortorella wants to avoid losing home ice advantage

CAPITALS | John Tortorella returned from the nation's capital with two big playoff wins in his pocket and a stern message for his upstart New York Rangers.

Just because the seventh-seeded Rangers had the upper hand on the Southeast Division-champion Washington Capitals, in no way were they playing perfect hockey.

Tortorella warned that if they didn't control the puck a lot more on home ice, this Eastern Conference playoff series could change quickly.

Alex Ovechkin and his Capitals linemates turned Tortorella into a prophet.

Instead of working on a sweep Wednesday night in Game 4, the Rangers will need to be at their best to avoid going back to D.C. tied 2-2 and handing home-ice advantage back to the favored Capitals.

The Rangers' biggest wor-

Tortorella acknowledged he's concerned about Drury's condition after he sat out the series opener. "I am healthy enough to be in the lineup, so I have to try to help the team." IRA PODELL (AP)

Nations CF Elijah Dukes, left, shakes hands with players from the Great Falls Little League April 18. Dukes was fined for being late to work after the event.

Little League to Pay Dukes' Tardiness Fine

Player owes Nationals $500 for being late to work after kids' event

NATIONALS | He stayed for the speeches. He stayed for the parade of Little Leaguers — all 54 teams' worth. He stayed for the cheerleaders and the introduction of the high school team and the national anthem.

Finally, Elijah Dukes took the microphone, said a few words to the kids and parents about "working hard" and "having fun." Exactly the type of stuff a big-time professional athlete would say on opening day of the local Little League.

And then, "Boom," said Jim Mraz, president of the Great Falls Little League, "he sprints to his car and he was gone."

It wasn't until later on Saturday that Mraz and others from the league realized what had happened to their keynote speaker after he left: Dukes had arrived five minutes late to Nationals Park, earning himself a $500 fine from his employers, the Washington Nationals, for whom he plays center field.

"The next day we're reading the paper, and we're hearing he was [fined and] benched," said Leslie

McClain, the mother of 11-year-old Luke. "We were just really horrified by that, so our first thought was we want to raise the money in the community to pay that fine. We just think it's appalling."

And so began the story of what is surely the most unusual fundraiser in the history of the Great Falls Little League.

“The point is ... he was here for us. Now we've got to be there for him.”

JIM MRZ, PRESIDENT OF THE GREAT FALLS LITTLE LEAGUE

It started with a flurry of e-mails between incredulous parents and league organizers, and will end later this week when Mraz delivers exactly $501 — the extra $1 covering any "administrative expenses," he said — to the Nationals for the purpose of paying off Dukes's fine.

"The point is, this guy gave back to our community, and now he's in a hard spot," said Mraz. "We're just trying to send a message to our kids: He was here for us. Now we've got to be there for him."

United Opens Cup Defense

Team begins 64-team U.S. Open Cup play against FC Dallas

UNITED | The high point of D.C. United's 2008 season was a mid-week victory against a minor league team from Charleston, S.C. Although not much to brag about on its own, the early September win secured United's second U.S. Open Cup title, a berth in this year's CONCACAF Champions League and a parting gift in what was an otherwise frustrating season.

D.C.'s defense of that crown begins Wednesday at RFK Stadium against FC Dallas, in what amounts to a round-of-64 game in the single-elimination tournament open to every professional and affiliated amateur club in the country. Charleston's run to last year's final, and its upset of two MLS teams on the way, is central to the appeal of the 95-year-old competition.

Six MLS sides were given byes to the round of 16, thanks to their 2008 regular-season records, leaving D.C. and seven others to play two extra matches. United (1-1-3 in MLS) will have to balance health issues with its interest in defending its title, and likely will field a mixture of veteran and younger players.

Ben Olsen and Jaime Moreno likely will sit, and playmaker Christian Gomez will miss the game with a injured hamstring.

All the World's a Stage

A grand-scale film emphasizing our planet's majesty hits theaters on Earth Day

MOVIE | How do you make a movie when the whole planet is your set?

That's the challenge Alastair Fothergill and Mark Linfield faced in making "Earth," the first film from the new DisneyNature label, set to hit theaters on Earth Day, April 22.

The filmmakers, also responsible for the Discovery Channel series "Planet Earth," spent five years collecting footage. They worked with dozens of camera crews, filming at 200 locations in 64 countries to tell a sweeping story about the planet's landscapes, seasons and species.

"I've worked on some pretty massive projects in my time, but they're completely dwarfed by the scale of 'Earth,'" Fothergill said.

Narrated by actor James Earl Jones, the film follows three animal families as they lead their young through the first year of life: A male polar bear searches for food beneath melting Arctic ice as his two tiny cubs and their mother emerge from their snow den to greet the first rays of spring sunlight; a mother elephant in Africa's sun-scorched Kalahari Desert guides her calf through a blinding sandstorm in a quest for water after months of drought; a humpback whale and her new calf begin a 4,000-mile journey from the warm waters of the tropics to the food-rich seas of Antarctica.

ANIMAL PLANET: In "Earth," one of the three clans the film crew trailed was a family of polar bears dealing with melting ice.

Besides being "emotionally engaging," Fothergill said, focusing on animal families "has a sort of ecological resonance of us as human beings preserving our planet for our children."

The filmmakers relied on advances in camera and film technology to capture the natural behavior of their main characters.

"I've worked on some pretty massive projects in my time, but they're completely dwarfed by 'Earth.'"

"Now we can actually film detailed behavior from the air from a kilometer away," he said. "You can actually film behavior and film animals in the context of their environment from places you could never even get to in the past, and the animals are largely oblivious to the fact that you're there."

Natural history films have a renewed appeal in the era of digital manipulation, Linfield also said.

"There's so much artifice in normal supposed live-action Hollywood movies at the moment," he said. "Just to see something which you know is true from beginning to end, without a single frame of manipulation, is much more powerful." ANDY COHEN (AP)

The Green 'Price Is Right'

A CBS game show and soaps shift focus to the environment

ENVIRONMENT | Green prizes are coming on down at "The Price Is Right."

In observance of Earth Day, Wednesday's episode of the CBS game show will feature environmentally friendly products including cell phones made of recycled materials, solar charging equipment and a recycling cabinet.

Environmentalist and actor Ed Begley Jr. will introduce a showcase that includes an electric bike, golf cart and Toyota Prius hybrid car. Trips offered during the show will be paired with donations to offset carbon emissions.

CBS soap operas "As the World Turns," "The Young and the Restless" and "Guiding Light" will recognize Earth Day within their sudsy plots, and Lesley-Anne Down of "The Bold and the Beautiful" will appear in a public service announcement.

CELEBRITY Off the Ice, Into the Fire The Food Network has a few inventive series in the works, not the least of which will star Olympic figure skater and gold medal-winner Brian Boitano. Apparently, a mean butterfly jump isn't the only skill he has — Boitano is a serious cook and entertainer. In each episode of his show, he'll create food for a different social event. And what, you ask, is the working title of the series? In an homage to South Park, you guessed it: "What Would Brian Boitano Cook?" (EXPRESS)

Beyonce talks tour, Twitter and fighting for all things worth it

Q&A | In a recent interview, Beyonce — whose latest CD, "I Am ... Sasha Fierce," is double platinum — talked about concerts (her tour kicks off June 21 at Madison Square Garden) in the YouTube age and what she will fight for.

How will this tour be different from your 2007 "B'Day" tour?
It's going to be more emotional, because [on] this album, "I Am," that portion was a lot more real and raw and more sensitive.

Often, snippets of concerts end up on the Internet. Is it frustrating not being able to surprise

MUSIC WORLD ENTERTAINMENT

Beyonce and her "I Am" tour will be at Verizon Center in D.C. on June 26.

people anymore?
It's very frustrating now. ... People can get a little sneak peak and say, "Oh, I wanna come to the show," or, "I don't wanna go to that show" [laughs], and I'm fans of people, so I go on there and check it out, too. But you put so much of your heart and time into the wardrobe ... it's kind of unfortunate.

In your new movie, "Obsessed," out on Friday, you play a wife who fights to protect her family. What is the hardest thing you ever fought for?
Everything that's worth anything you have to fight for. You have to fight in your relationships, I have to fight for my career, I have to fight to stay in shape, because I get tempted to eat chocolate [laughs]. It's all a fight, but it's worth it.

Your sister Solange Twitters all the time. Do you do it?
My sister is the Twitter queen. I don't get it; I feel like I'm getting really old. I'm, like, "What? I don't understand. Just call me."

1 Turn of Last Century
In the late '90s, "Ragtime," a musical about a fictional early 20th-century family and the historical events that shape their lives, was eclipsed by the barrier-breaking "Lion King." Now, you can make up for lost time by discovering (or rediscovering) this incredibly ambitious show, which seeks to condense E.L. Doctorow's sweeping novel into a manageable evening of theater. The surprise: It succeeds. F.Z.

New Band, Old Musical Soul

Chester French pairs a hipster vibe with an authentic sound

MUSIC | Listening to Chester French's album "Love the Future" is like walking through a hipster boutique — graphic T-shirts with ironic sayings to the right, obscure vinyl records to the left and general nerdiness all around. The only difference is that D.A. Wallach and Max Drummey's musical goods have more authenticity.

"Love Future" is sonically retro — the lead single, "She Loves Everybody," is vintage pop with a touch of soul, and "Beneath the Veil" could easily pass for a Johnny Cash cover.

The lyrics, however, are a bit more contemporary. It seems that part of what makes Chester French appealing is imagining lead singer D.A. Wallach, in his bow tie and khaki pants, crooning sincerely that "it ain't groupie love ... you're my Bebe Buell, my Puerto Rican Pamela Lee" on the roaring track "Bebe Buell." MELANIE SIMS (AP)

A Pirate's Life for Him

Blackbeard is master of a sunken ship on 'Secrets of the Dead'

YO HO | Pirates are back in the news, and a timely "Secrets of the Dead" (8 p.m., PBS) recalls one of the biggest and baddest pirate stories of them all on "Blackbeard's Lost Ship."

While watching last week's pirate drama, I recalled my fifth-grade history class and tales of Barbary pirates and Marines storming "the shores of Tripoli." But as tonight's "Secrets" reminds us, pirates were a problem well before the United States even existed.

Blackbeard's story feels appropriate — pirates seem to be trendy this spring.

A villain stranger than fiction, Blackbeard (1680?-1718) attacked and plundered merchant ships off the East Coast. At his notorious height, his pirate fleet managed to blockade the port of Charleston, S.C., looting ships and taking prominent citizens hostage.

But not long after, his boat sank off North Carolina's Outer Banks. In the late 1990s, marine archaeologists discovered the watery remains of his pirate flagship, Queen Ann's Revenge. Treating the ruins like a crime scene, they will determine whether Blackbeard's ship ran aground in foul weather or whether he had the vessel intentionally sunk in a final act of treachery against his own crew. Pour a Little Sugar Out

Dessert wine can sub for (or go with) post-dinner sweets

When a waiter hands you a dessert menu, it's relatively easy to choose between pecan pie and creme brulee. But the wines listed with the sweets aren't as easy to figure out. Does port really go with chocolate? What's a vin santo anyhow? And if you serve them chez you, what should you open?

Dessert wines often get a bad rap because people associate words such as "Madeira" and "sherry" with stuffy old ladies or Boone's Farm hangovers. But sweet wines don't have to equal bad wines. If dessert vinos — sometimes called stickies — are well made, sugar isn't the only thing you notice.

"There's no such thing as a wine being too sweet," says Jon Genderson of Schneider's wine shop (300 Massachusetts Ave. NE; 202-543-9300). "You need to have the correct amount of acidity to balance the sweetness." He points to Chateau d'Yquem, one of France's most famed varieties. "The wine has 30 percent residual sugar, but it has so much acidity that it doesn't come off as cloying."

The residual sugar — the leftover grape sugar that hasn't turned into alcohol during fermentation — gives these wines their almost-syrupy flavor, and the alcohol gives them structure. With ports and sherries, also known as fortified wines, neutral grape brandy is added to balance the sweetness. Other wines are made from late-harvest grapes, aka fruit left on the vine late into the growing season, which results in extra-concentrated sugars.

Techniques for making post-prandial bottles vary. For Italian Amarone, grapes are pulled from the vines and allowed to shrivel in the sun, producing a rich, raisin-y liquid that tastes swell with cheese. Other wines are produced by fungus, as in Botrytis cinerea, a grayish mold responsible for the honeyed wines from the damp Sauternes region of Bordeaux as well as Beerenauslese and Trockenbeerenauslese from Germany. This so-called "noble rot" "extracts the water out of the grape," says Glen Fisher, wine director at Eventide, the contempo-American hot spot in Clarendon (3165 Wilson Blvd., Arlington; 703-276-3165). "What you get is concentrated and viscous. Botrytis leaves apricot flavors." It makes for white wines that go down easy solo or paired with a fruit tart.

Wines such as port and muscat, shown at Eventide with cornmeal cake with huckleberries, can be paired with sweets or sipped solo.

While Europeans may have invented many of these sippers, New World vintners are also getting in on the pour. In Louisa, Va. (two hours southwest of Washington), Cooper Vineyards has been experimenting with ice wines. These concentrated, sweet-as-candy blends come from grapes that have frozen either on the vine or in a commercial freezer.

After finding herself with a bumper crop in 2005, Cooper owner Jacquelyn Hogge froze 4 tons of Norton and vidal blanc grapes, creating Noche (a red with notes of cherry and chocolate) and Vida (a white that smacks of peach and apricot), which both won gold medals in this year's Virginia Governor's Cup, the state's most prestigious wine awards.

Cooper Vineyards' customers also like the after-dinner drinks, especially when Hogge serves the Noche in chocolate cups like fancy shooters. "You can even pour it over cheesecake or berries," she says. The wines are sold at the vineyard (Coopervineyards.com) or locally at some Total Wine and More shops (Totalwine.com).

While dessert wines go down easy, knowing which tart or treat to Dessert wines can be made from grapes that have frozen on the vine, dried in the sun or started to rot.

pair them with can be challenging. Some pros think the stems might need to stand alone. "I'm more of the mind-set that sweet wine is dessert," Fisher says. "They're tough pairs, unless it's something simple like a fruit tart or a flan." And some glasses of the grape, such as the Taylor Fladgate 10 Year Old Tawny Port on Eventide's list, may be rich enough to sate your sweet tooth sans any pie or pudding. Tawny ports, Fisher says, "taste just like liquid s'mores."

But what if you want to have your vino and eat your cake, too? Think about complementary tastes, says Jill Zimorski, beverage director at Cafe Atlantico (405 Eighth St. NW; 202-393-0812). Learn about the flavors — caramel, dried fruit, spice — present in dessert wines, and think about the treats that might match. She pairs the restaurant's chocolate-banana cake with maple-tinged sherry. A citrusy dessert white would work well with savory final courses, such as soft, stinky cheeses.

But be careful that a newfound passion for dessert wines doesn't turn you into a grape glutton. "All that sugar and alcohol makes them fattening," Genderson says.

▶ sip tips

Sometimes a dessert wine is reward enough on its own. But if you'd like to both sip and crunch, here are a few suggested pairings:

- PORT: Dark chocolate, walnuts or stilton cheese
- PEDRO XIMENEZ SHERRY: Pour over vanilla ice cream
- SAUTERNES: Fruit tart
- VIN SANTO: Biscotti for dipping

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) While those around you may think you've solved a long-standing mystery, you know there are still a few questions to answer. Keep at it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may not be able to complete all tasks; prioritize and you'll be able to get enough done to feel like you've made a dent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A reunion of sorts may be just around the corner, so you'll want to make a few basic preparations. Don't overdo it, but do try to be ready.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A message comes to you from an unusual source and in an unusual way. You'll want to get more information, surely, but you'll likely have to wait.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A surprise twist has you behaving in a manner that is, in the words of a friend, not you. One thing will lead to another.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may be unprepared for the flood of attention that is likely to come your way, and for no particular reason as far as you can tell.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll have reason to make a few decisions that will affect how you approach your daily endeavors. Efficiency is the key.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may be involved in a highly sensitive situation that, as far as you know, was in no way of your making. Be discreet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may find yourself far from home, for work or for another purpose that is not something you want to share just yet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may receive some financial news that has you making an abrupt change of course. You can save others from imminent danger.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may decide that what you've been doing is no longer for you in one way or another. A quick change may be difficult to orchestrate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Before you change gears and focus on something else, you'll want to tie up a few loose ends where a short-term project is concerned.

YOU HAVE THE POWER TO PROTECT ME
FROM AMERICA'S #1 CAUSE OF PREVENTABLE DEATH.

SENATORS, IT'S TIME FOR FDA REGULATION OF TOBACCO

More than 1,000 leading organizations and 70 percent of U.S. voters agree: FDA regulation of tobacco products is long overdue. It will shield kids from tobacco marketing that leads to addiction. Help prevent the more than 400,000 deaths from tobacco each year. And reduce the $96 billion spent annually on tobacco-related diseases. It's time for our leaders to take a stand and protect America's children against this killer. America can't afford to wait another day.
